It is the area's largest general admission venue and operates as part of the Amphitheater complex. The Bay Stage, named for its location on Zach's Bay in Wantagh, has a capacity of 5,000 and focuses on big-name acts that prefer playing general admission shows and developing acts and package tours that are too big for New York ballrooms but not big enough for arenas, said Live Nation's Christian McKnight, who is spearheading the stage's launch. "It's the right place to play for certain bands – bands who have wanted to come, but haven't been able to play Long Island," said McKnight. "It will fill a void." The new venue, which is located on the other side of the concession area from the amphitheater, will operate on the amphitheater's off days and feature lower ticket prices. The full Bay Stage schedule will be announced soon. "We're not going to be able to do it every show, but when we can we're going to try to put a Long Island band on the bill," said McKnight, who has been a longtime proponent of the Long Island music scene, organizing local shows as well as massive festivals like The Bamboozle. "There are so many Long Island bands out there doing well."
