

Third Eye Blind and Jimmy Eat World have announced a joint North American tour, with a stop at Jones Beach on Thur, July 11 - tix: <http://3EB.jonesbeach.com> Ra Ra Riot will be the opening act at every show.

In 2017, Third Eye Blind toured with Silversun Pickups for another Summer Gods Tour. Frontman Stephen Jenkins spoke on what summer shows mean to him in a statement: "The most scintillating, inspiring collective moments of my life have been outdoors in the summer exploding with music. Those sensations travel from when I was a little kid and rock music was brand new to our last Summer Gods tour, when everything is magically new again. I seek to create that exact blissed-out state of aliveness on tour this summer."

"We couldn't be more excited to spend our 25th summer as a band touring the country of our birth to play music for our American fan," Jimmy Eat World said in a statement. "Thanks to Third Eye Blind for inviting us to be a part of this amazing tour. We can't wait to hang out with our fans as well as making some new friends!" Jimmy Eat World released their best album in a long time, Integrity Blues, in 2016, and they're hitting the road starting in June to celebrate their twenty-fifth summer as a band. They'll be joined on the "Summer God" tour by '90s mallalternative rockers Third Eye Blind (who are headlining), plus openers alt-pop band Ra Ra Riot... Jimmy Eat World will also play Hangout Fest before their dates with Third Eye Blind begin... This isn't the first time in recent memory Jimmy Eat World have toured with a big '90s alt rock band; they supported Incubus on tour in the summer of 2017.
