“We couldn’t be more excited to get back out on the road and share our new music with our fans,” says ZBB frontman Zac Brown in a press release. “It’s been a long, difficult year for everyone, and we’re fired up to be reuniting with our crew, get back on tour and celebrate a brand-new world.”

Zac Brown Band will bring a variety of special guests with them on the road in 2021. Rising artist Ashland Craft is on the bill for most dates, with Georgia singer-songwriter Teddy Swims, "Whiskey's Fine" singer Adam Doleac and "Dark Horse" singer-songwriter Devin Dawson all joining the trek at different points, too. Additionally, Gabby Barrett will appear at some shows as well.

With 22 dates currently on the books, the Comeback Tour will stick mostly to the eastern half of the United States throughout its three-month run. Included on the itinerary are stops at Boston’s Fenway Park, Cincinnati’s Riverbend Music Center, and Charlotte’s PNC Music Pavilion. The jam-friendly octet will also play back-to-back nights at Jones Beach Theater in Wantagh, New York, on September 2nd and 3rd, and another two-night run at Fiddler’s Green Amphitheatre in Denver on September 17th and 18th. The tour concludes with an October 17th stop at Nashville’s Bridgestone Arena.

It’s been more than 14 months since the jam-band influenced hit makers behind “Chicken Fried” and more parked the tour bus, and front man Zac Brown says he’s looking forward to this run on multiple fronts.
